Mr. Levy, a member in Leventhal Senter & Lerman's intellectual property practice, has extensive experience in trademark, copyright, unfair competition and Internet law. In the course of his career, he has represented a broad range of domestic and international clients in the entertainment, communications, electronics and biotechnology sectors before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and in appeals and adversarial proceedings before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board. He has also represented clients in federal court on matters relating to trademark infringement, "cybersquatting," and computer security issues.

Mr. Levy has had extensive involvement in software privacy and internet advertising matters, representing clients in numerous contract negotiations and related litigation. He also advises clients in the radio broadcasting industry regarding trademark and copyright issues, including trademark clearance, prosecution and enforcement, copyright enforcement, intellectual property licensing, and digital streaming of audio and video, as well as issues affecting the privacy of consumer data.

Mr. Levy has successfully prosecuted numerous domain name dispute cases before World Intellectual Property Organization ("WIPO") and National Arbitration Forum under the Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy ("UDRP").

Before joining Leventhal Senter & Lerman, Mr. Levy was an associate with Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner, LLP, where he specialized in trademark, copyright and unfair competition law in the firm's Tokyo and Washington, D.C. offices. While in Tokyo, Mr. Levy also served as an adjunct professor at Temple University's Tokyo campus, where he co-taught a course in comparative intellectual property law.

Prior to becoming an attorney, Mr. Levy was a telecommunications policy regulatory and policy analyst/Soviet-Eastern European affairs analyst for the management consulting firm Booz Allen & Hamilton. He was also the editor and regular contributor to an award-winning U.S. government newsletter on telecommunications policy, regulation and technology entitled NS/EP Telecom News.
